Marines Smash Jap Commissary

First Accounts of Gilberts Conquest Hint at Heavy Toll

Marines Fought One of Toughest Battles in History of Corps

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Lt. Col. Evans F. Carlson, Marine hero of Nicaragua, Makin and Guadalcanal, explained in three words, "determination, tenacity, courage," how a few battalions of Leathernecks were able to annihilate nearly 4,000 Japanese imperial marines and capture Tarawa, main air base in the Gilberts, in 76 hours.

"Those boys really did the job," said Carlson, who as an observer landed Nov. 20 with the Marines at Tarawa and made daily trips through machine gun and mortar fire to report to the flagship.

"Everyone of those boys was tenacious and determined," he asserted in an interview.

"The Japs might have exterminated them with the first night, but they couldn't have driven us off." (Secretary of Navy Knox said at Washington American losses were heavy, but that the enemy's were much heavier.)

"The chief difference in Wake (a few hundred Marines held out for 17 days against heavy Jap bombardment) and Tarawa was the determination, tenacity and courage of the defenders. It was by far the toughest job I've ever seen. It was one of the toughest battles ever fought in the Marine Corps' (168 years) history.

Cooperation Praised
Cooperation of warships, in shelling Japan's installations on Tarawa and the Army and Navy aerial bombardment played a big part in its capture, Carlson said. Carlson related this story of the capture of Betio, main island of the Tarawa atoll:

"It was the first time American boys assaulted the island for occupancy. (Carlson led the Marine raiders who devastated Makin in August, 1942, but that was a hit-and-run strike.) This was a carefully planned operation. The Navy's big guns and the aerial support was important but the occupation itself was a blood and guts operation—just plain blood and guts. The Marines really did the job.

"The assault battalions went in on schedule. In common with all atolls there was a coral shelf on the lagoon side of the island. The lagoon is practically dry in low tide and probably has a foot and a half of water inshore in high tide. We landed in flood time.

Met Fierce Opposition
"Many had to disembark and walk in 300 to 400 yards through fierce gunfire. The battalion commander (Lt. Col. Jim Crowe) swore it was at least a million miles. Despite aerial bombardment we had to go through fierce opposition—machine gun, 20 mm., mortar 75 or 90 mm. fire. The Japs opened fire while some Marines still were on the boats.

"There was an old Jap hulk in the lagoon. The Japs were entrenched inside. They withheld their fire until our assault troops were near the shore, then they opened fire from the rear. They seemed all set for us."

Here Lt. Col. James Roosevelt, who landed on Makin with the 165th Infantry (the Old Fighting 69th) interjected:

"They knew almost exactly when we were coming. A native on Makin told us a Japanese scout seaplane radioed the night before the position of our task force and that it was due in the morning."

THE WAR TODAY

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.

(This column, conducted regularly by Dewitt MacKenzie, is written in his absence today by J. M. Roberts, Jr.).

Peace talk is going around again.

The Pope is reported acting as go-between for the allies and Germany. Senator Downey of California says he has it from unusual well-informed sources that influential Germans are seeking a way out. A member of parliament suggests the German people be told just what they can expect from an armistice. Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, takes cognizance with a warning against misplaced optimism. Many reports so wild that they have not obtained publication have been current for some days.

The phenomenon is not a new one, and frequently runs concurrently with situations like the present.

There are reports of prospective conferences between Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin and possibly Chiang. Hitler armies are reeling in Russia, and his Italian front more and more resembles a hopeless holding action. Allied observers estimate that three or four more raids like the recent big ones will wipe out Berlin, and Louis P. Lochner, who spent many years there as an Associated Press correspondent, says elimination of Berlin will probably eliminate Germany as a belligerent.

There are bound to be influential if non-official Germans who seek a way out. Paul Kern Lee, AP correspondent familiar with Franz Von Papen's doings in Ankara, says that very slippery diplomat can be expected to try to pull a Badoglio any time he is in

United States Fleet—Largest in World—Now Has 817 Fighting Ships

Washington, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The United States fleet—largest in the world—has been doubled in 11 months and now bristles with 817 fighting ships, including more than 40 aircraft carriers.

Navy Secretary Knox, disclosing the size of the fleet, voiced a prayer that the Japanese fleet soon may be drawn into action and wiped out.

Knox announced yesterday construction of 419 new ships in the last 11 months—more than a ship a day. The 21 American warships lost since January 1 will be made up "within the next two weeks," boosting the total combat strength to 838 vessels he said.

Aircraft carriers, playing an more important role in the drive on Japan, made up a large share of the new construction—40 new carriers of all types have been

Reds Over Berezina; Disorganized Nazis Suffer Fresh Blows

Germans Hit Hard at Site Where Napoleon's Legions Met Defeat

Moscow, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Army newspaper Red Star said today that the Russians had crossed the Berezina river, inflicting a new blow on the disorganized German army along the stream where Napoleon's legions met final defeat during the retreat from Moscow.

Following up his smashing victory at Gomel, Gen. Constantin Rokossovskiy pushed through White Russia west of the Dnieper river, outflanking the German base of Zlobin, 50 miles north-west of captured Gomel, the army newspaper reported. The railroad running southwest from Zlobin to Kalinkovichi was cut in yesterday's westward surge, where the railway crosses the Berezina.

Rokossovskiy's White Russian army reached the Berezina by a northward push along the west bank of the Dnieper, while other forces enveloped and stormed the fortress city of Gomel east of the river.

Red Star said a heavy artillery barrage and repeated raids by the Red Air Force drove the enemy from the right bank of the Berezina, which flows southeastward into the Dnieper, 20 miles below Zlobin.

Fast-moving advance spearheads stormed into the towns of Nizhnia and Olba, forming the strongest knot of German resistance in this sector. Then they fanned out along both banks of the Berezina, striking north and northwest to sever the Zlobin-Kalinkovichi railroad.

Germans Still Holding
Red Star said the Germans still were holding out in strongly fortified bases along the Berezina to the northwest and were offering stiff resistance to the advancing Red army.

Rokossovskiy's triumph at Gomel opened the way for a possible general advance toward Pinsk and Brest-Litovsk, chief cities of the former Polish province of Polesie. Gomel, last German-held bastion east of the Dnieper river, fell yesterday after a siege which began Oct. 13, three weeks after Rokossovskiy's troops fought their way into the Gomel sector and crossed the Sozh river above the strongly-fortified Nazi base.

Held up for more than two months by powerful German fortifications, the Red army troops, avoiding costly frontal attacks

Military Committee Wants Explanation of Patton Incident

Eisenhower-Stimson Consider Case Closed; Committee Doesn't

By JACK BELL

Washington, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Spurred by letters from aroused parents, the senate military committee demanded today that the War Department explain an official equivocation on the Patton soldier-cuffing incident and release the details of any similar occurrences.

The committee had before it a report from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that he had expressed his "extreme displeasure" to Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., for upbraiding two hospitalized soldier victims of battle nerves in "an unseemly and indefensible" manner, ordered apologies which were made, and withheld a decision on relieving Patton from command of the Seventh Army.

Eisenhower gave every indication that he considered the case closed, as did Secretary of War Stimson in submitting the report, but committee members had different ideas.

Ask Full Explanation
One senator who declined use of his name said the group had asked for a full explanation of a statement issued by a military spokesman at allied headquarters in Algiers last Monday, in which it was said that Eisenhower had not reprimanded Patton, that no soldier had declined to carry out Patton's orders and that the General still was in command of the Seventh Army.

This was widely accepted as a denial of reports broadcast in this country of the soldier cuffing incident until Eisenhower's headquarters later made available the information that disciplinary action had been taken against Patton.

In its request, the committee asked also for information as to any other incidents of this nature in which Patton might have been involved or in which any other staff officer might have been guilty of the same conduct. Eisenhower's report was the first official disclosure that Patton had upbraided two nerve patients, instead of one.

Parents Want Answer
One senator attributed the committee's inquiry into this aspect of the affair to an avalanche of mail from parents who demanded to know if Patton was accustomed to such conduct and if that was what might be expected of other American generals.

Eisenhower said that, acting on his demand, Patton had apologized to the men involved and to the officers of every division of the Seventh Army, who in turn relayed the apology to their men.

His investigation convinced him, Eisenhower said, that the men themselves felt that Patton had done "a splendid overall job" in his driving direction of the victorious Seventh Army in Sicily and that "no great harm had been done" by his outburst of temper.

Asserting that Patton had been greeted with "thunderous ap-

Employment, Payrolls in Illinois Increase Over 1 Pct. in Month

Chicago, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Employment in Illinois gained 1.7 per cent in the Sept. 15-Oct. 15 period while payrolls gained 2.5 per cent, Francis B. Murphy, state director of labor, estimated today. For manufacturing establishments the employment gain was 1.3 per cent while payrolls were up 2.8. Non-manufacturing concerns reported employment advances of 3.2 and payroll boosts of 0.9 per cent.

The Chicago metropolitan area showed the greatest percentage of gain. Murphy's report disclosed. The overall gain in employment was 2.9 per cent in the area with payrolls advancing 3.2. This compared to downstate percentages of a minus 0.6 and plus 1.0 respectively.

For manufacturing establishments the Chicago area showed an employment gain of 2.5 per cent and a payroll gain of 3.8 compared to downstate figures of an 0.9 per cent loss in employment and an 0.9 gain in payrolls.

For non-manufacturing establishments, the Chicago area gained 3.9 in employment and 0.6 per cent in payrolls. Downstate figures were 1.1 per cent and 1.9 per cent advances respectively.

Puzzled

LaMoille, Ill., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The sound of a siren at LaMoille, given three times daily, does not mean an airplane ride and a bombing raid, and "Blitz", five-months-old cocker spaniel, is a bit puzzled.

"Blitz" is a veteran of a dozen Southwest Pacific bombing raids and the sounding of a siren on Guadalcanal airfield was the signal for him to "get going," said his master, Tech. Sgt. Harold M. Lant.

Stowed in the fuselage of a B-17 beside Lant, the dog has had a ringside seat on the sky firing line of attacks against the Japs, said Lant, a veteran of 123 bombing sorties. He brought "Blitz" with him when he recently returned home on furlough after 14 months overseas with the 13th Air Force.

"Blitz really likes to fly," said Lant, who has been in the Air Corps three years and has a flying cross, an air medal and three oak leaf clusters. He said that at the sound of the village siren, given as a time signal, Blitz gets excited, runs around the house, barking and anxious to "get going."

Government Wool Will Be Stored in Dixon Warehouse

The huge fire-proof storage warehouse at the J. I. Case Co. plant on Depot avenue and possibly the old foundry building are soon to be utilized in the storage of government-owned wool. It was announced today, E. J. Seeley of Miles City, Mont., representative of the firm of Merriam & Wilkins of Denver, Colo., has arrived in Dixon to take over the management of the storage warehouses. He was accompanied by two other representatives of the wool brokerage firm, who will remain in Dixon and operate the plant.

It is expected that about 12,000,000 pounds of western grown wool will be shipped to Dixon by rail and truck to be stored in the large warehouse which will be filled first. It was reported that the company has options on the old foundry buildings, which may also be used for wool storage when the large warehouse is filled.

Is Large Firm

The Merriam & Wilkins Company is one of the largest sheep and wool buying commission firms in the country, and has numerous wool storage warehouses located in the west and northwest. The

Recognize Existence of State of Beligerency Between Colombia-Reich

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The senate approved a government statement today recognizing the existence of a state of belligerency between this nation and Germany.

The action followed official announcement last night that a German submarine had sunk the Colombian schooner Ruby Nov. 17 in the Caribbean, the second Colombian vessel to fall victim to a U-boat since war began.

The senate action, taken over the opposition of conservatives who wanted to postpone a vote for further study, followed a statement by foreign minister Carlos Lozano Y Lozano that the government considered itself in "a state of belligerency" with Germany. Lozano said, however, that Colombia has no intention of sending troops or naval forces abroad, but desired to place herself in closer participation with the United Nations.

In his statement to the senate, Lozano declared that drastic action was justified because of "the unprovoked acts of war on the part of Germany."

He said, however, that the government did not desire the extraordinary powers usually accorded the president in time of war because it was desired that the country continue its normal life.

MacArthur Bolsters Position for New Britain Invasion

Allies Capture Sattelberg Plateau; Many Japs Slaughtered

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A menacing 2,400-foot-high jungle plateau from which Japanese had overlooked the New Guinea sector where the most important invasion of the Southwest Pacific war is possible was in Gen Douglas MacArthur's hands today.

Australians who had followed closely behind 26-ton tanks as far as the tanks could crash their way through the dense growth stormed those heights yesterday at Sattelberg, slaughtered the Japs in their dugouts, drove survivors in flight along a trail to the north and seized the field guns and military equipment they abandoned.

Sattelberg, first major enemy position to fall since the capture on Oct. 2 of coastal Finschhafen eight miles to the southeast, looks down on the Huon Gulf where General MacArthur's ground troops are separated only by the narrow waters of Dampier Strait from western New Britain. Loss of New Britain would tear apart Japan's entire South and Southwest Pacific position inasmuch as Rabaul harbors the warships and planes for the defense of the sector—New Guinea, New Britain, New Ireland and the northern Solomons.

Brilliant Feat

The capture of Sattelberg nine days after the drive opened from near Finschhafen was a feat accomplished by hard fighting, deadly accurate air attacks and the brilliant work of American engineers in keeping supplies moving.

The frantic defenders broke for the wares trail into the northern jungles after three forces of Aussies, moving in from as many directions, threatened them with encirclement.

In the air, allied bombers probably added a fifth and perhaps a sixth to the total of Japanese cruisers sunk this month. United States "Black Cats"—Navy Catalinas which usually fly at night—hit a cruiser during the dark hours of Thursday morning 65 miles northwest of Rabaul. Heavy explosions shook the warship and fires broke out below decks.

Jap Guns Silenced

The previous night, a Liberator bombed a cruiser northeast of Garove island, which is in the Bismarck archipelago near New Britain, probably destroying it. The battle for Bougainville was largely an air one although South

Challenger in Wreck; Eleven Persons Hurt

San Bernardino, Calif., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Eleven persons were injured, none believed fatally, in the collision of the Union Pacific's Challenger passenger train and a helper engine near Devore, six miles east of here, last night.

Two dining cars and a Pullman were knocked off the track when the engine, returning to San Bernardino after helping boost a long train over the steep Cacon pass, crashed into the Challenger. Deputy Sheriff H. C. English said he was told the collision occurred when a switchman sent the helper engine from a siding onto the main line.

The Challenger was east-bound from Los Angeles on its run to Chicago.

Ten German Bombers Blasted Out of Air Over Italy; Weather Slows Army

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 27.—(AP)—British Eighth Army troops have slashed forward to extend their bridgehead across the swollen Sangro river which has risen over two feet and in some places is now a thousand feet wide, it was announced today.

American troops of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army smashed two enemy thrusts west of Venafro as the weather improved in that sector of the Italian front.

In the air war American heavy bombers pounded rail facilities on two sides of the Italian peninsula, hitting at Recco near Genoa and at Timini on the Adriatic coast.

Meanwhile, it was announced that at least ten German bombers, including some big Heinkel 177's

Minute Examination of 'Good Neighbor' Expense Demanded

Washington, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Senate investigators called for a detailed examination of "good neighbor" activities and spending today, outcome of a Republican senator's charge that the United States has spent or obligated more than $6,000,000,000 in Latin America.

Chairman Byrd (D-Va.) of a committee investigating government spending, said he had asked Nelson Rockefeller, the coordinator of Inter-American affairs, for a complete accounting.

In a 200-page report, Senator Butler (R-Neb.) asserted yesterday that U. S. cash is being used for "boondoggling."

Butler, who made a 20,000-mile personal investigation, said the neighboring republics either thought Uncle Sam was a "sucker" or were plainly distrustful of the motives.

Vice President Wallace, who has taken an active interest in South American affairs, called Butler's report "a shocking slur to our Latin American allies" based on "fantastic figures which have been used in an apparent effort to discredit the good neighbor policy."

McKellar Replies

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.)—shouting to Butler that the Nebraska was "letting his imagination run away with him"—argued that actual government

Third Great Attack of Week Delivered There Last Night

Stuttgart, Major Industrial Center, Battered in Twin Blows

London, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The RAF's heavy armadas struck Berlin, the greatest of all German targets, a third great blow with heavy burdens of explosives and incendiaries last night in the campaign to rub it from Adolf Hitler's Reich.

The fifth successive strike at the German capital and the third heavy assault since Monday night was accompanied by a simultaneous attack on the major industrial center of Stuttgart, 300 miles to the southwest.

The two-ply blow split German defenses, but nevertheless enemy fighters were more effective in stemming the waves of attacking aircraft and the air ministry announced that 32 bombers had failed to return from the twin operation.

This compared with the loss of 26 bombers on the first night of the campaign and 20 on the second.

The operation brought a new 24-hour record in the deluge of bombs on the enemy's vital centers.

With Thursday night's RAF attack on Frankfurt-am-Main and a record blow by nearly 1,000 American planes at the North Sea port of Bremen yesterday, the total tonnage probably was considerably over the 4,000 peak of Nov. 3 when the United States Air Force bombed Wilhelmshaven and northern France and the RAF hit Duesseldorf.

39 U. S. Planes Lost

The greatest force of Flying Fortresses and Liberators ever employed flew against Bremen and with their escorts totaled nearly 1,000 planes. They lost 39 of their number, 29 of them large bombers, and destroyed 56 German defending aircraft.

Fires from previous night assaults were still blazing in Berlin as the hundreds of heavy bombers roared over, returning pilots reported, and the air ministry said the new bombing was concentrated and "most effective" with the weather good for spotting the targets.

The world's most-bombed city now probably had received a fiery bath of around 14,000 long tons of bombs this year, compared with the 10,000 which flattened Hamburg.

Berlin 25 Per Cent Wiped Out
Even before last night's deluge Berlin was 25 to 30 per cent wiped out, according to an unnamed military expert just arrived in Sweden from the Reich.

At Stuttgart, one of Germany's major centers of airplane, submarine engine, tank and truck production and an important rail hub on the route to Italy, large fires were lighted, particularly around the railroad yards, the air ministry said.

The city was bombed by the Senate Passage of Order Boosting Wage of Rails Predicted

Washington, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) today predicted overwhelming senate passage of a resolution ordering a flat eight cents an hour pay boost for 1,109,000 non-operating railroad employees as efforts to compromise appeared weakening.

With heads of the 15 non-operating railway unions awaiting congressional action before announcing the results of a strike vote cast by their members, Wheeler called a meeting of the senate interstate commerce committee for Tuesday to consider action.

"I haven't any doubt that the resolution will be reported favorably to the senate," Wheeler, chairman of the committee, told a reporter. "I haven't any doubt that it will pass the senate."

Offered by Senator Truman (D-Mo) and approved by a subcommittee, the proposal authorizes the 8-cent raise agreed to between the unions and the railroads last August, but subsequently rejected by Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilization Director.

Vinson approved instead a sliding scale of increases of from four to ten cents an hour, which the unions termed unacceptable.

High School Notes

Basket Ball
Franklin Grove won the second round of its 1943-44 basketball schedule on Wednesday night by defeating Mt. Morris by a score of 29 to 27. The game was played on the local floor and drew a good crowd of enthusiastic fans. Franklin Grove started fast and built up a good lead in the early stages of the game. The visitors came back strong in the second half and almost closed the gap, but the final horn found the locals on the long end of a 29 to 27 count.

Assistant editor—Elyda Meyer.
Sports editors—Wayne Shaulis, Ben Smith.

Race Riots

Educators Study Outbreaks in Several American Cities

BY F. GLENN ENGLE

Detroit —(AP)— What causes race riots? Did the outbreaks in New York, Detroit, Los Angeles, Beaumont stem from a common cause? What steps should be taken to prevent recurrences?

These are some of the questions two on-the-scene sociologists attempt to answer in a new book, "Race Riot", published by the Dryden Press. The authors are Alfred McClung Lee, chairman of the department of sociology at Wayne University and executive director of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, and Norman D. Humphrey, assistant professor of sociology at Wayne. The book has been labeled

FARMS AND CITY
REAL ESTATE
R. L. WARNER

"dynamite" by several critics here. But as dynamite is used to clear an ice-jammed river to prevent flooding, so it is used in the flood of rumors which has persisted since early last summer.

Of the Detroit race riot, in which 34 persons were killed, the authors conclude in general:
1. That it had been brewing for many months, probably years.
2. That little or nothing was done to prevent it.
3. That the city was unprepared to handle it.
4. That most official reports on the riot have been superficial and evasive.
5. That little has been done to prevent a recurrence.

As to the cause of race riots, the authors say they are "the end products of thousands of little irritants in an atmosphere of growing tension". Riots are nearer, the authors continue, when such catchwords as "niggers" for negroes, and "pinks" and "ofays" (satirical for white "superiors") are used to sum up attitudes toward the other race.

"Take such events and catch phrases, and then think of people with patience frayed by the fatigue of war-prolonged work-weeks and by the snapping of war-strained nerves and tempers. Think of the saloons, the pool parlors, and the movies as the only easily accessible recreational facilities to furnish much needed respite from these crowded living conditions. Think of the tension that grips both races.

"At such a time, a single spectacular event can unleash a torrent of accumulated emotional hatreds and bitterness."

The relatively short span of time during which racial outbreaks were experienced in Los Angeles, New York, Beaumont and other cities as well as Detroit, caused many citizens to wonder whether subversive elements were at work. The authors contend that each city's problem was unique in some respects. The Harlem riots differed from those in Detroit, they say, in three ways: First, the negroes in Harlem did not clash with white gangs; they rioted out of sheer frustration, "the frustration of black men in a white man's world"; secondly, city officials and police in New York took such immediate and decisive action to prevent the outbreak from spreading that they brought a statement of commendation from a prominent Negro leader; in the third place, no notable "climate of intolerance" existed among the whites of New York. The authors describe the Los Angeles riots as a "zoot-suit race war", because they persisted over a greater number of days than the Detroit or Harlem outbreaks.

WATERED STOCK

Seattle — Evro Becket, state liquor board chairman, reports a Seattle resident opened a bottle of Scotch for Thanksgiving Day festivities—and found it contained water. A full case of the same later was found in a state-owned liquor store.
It's the act of a professional, says Becket, and there probably are more 100 per cent water cases elsewhere.

Dependable Club, Legion Auxiliary Send Gifts to Service Center

Two large well-fitted boxes were packed at the Legion hall and expressed to the Service Men's Center in Chicago this week. These boxes contained articles contributed by the members of the Dependable Welfare club of the Freeman Shoe company and members of the American Legion auxiliary.

When the plea for things needed at the center came to the attention of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Connie Wood, national defense chairman of the auxiliary contacted Miss Marie Heft, vice-president of the Dependable club, who went to work immediately to collect contributions.

The gifts from the club included large numbers of magazines, books, games, puzzles, phonograph records, sheet music, razor blades, shaving soap and cream, lotions, stationery, greeting cards, playing cards shoe polish, tooth brushes, paste and powder, toilet soap, candy, homemade cookies and jam, a blanket and several cartons of cigarets. Members of the auxiliary contributed many of the same kind of articles and cash donations. The fine assortment and amount of contributions from the Dependable club shows the loyal and patriotic feeling they share with others.

Mrs. Blewfield to Review Book for Woman's Club

Mrs. F. J. Blewfield will give a review of the book "The Little Locksmith" for the Dixon Woman's club next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the Loveland Community House. This is the third of the series of reviews which are sponsored by the literature department under the direction of Mrs. Adolph Eichler.

Katharine Butler Hathaway is the author of the book and she has written it about her own life. She was physically handicapped in such a way that she has had to build her whole world within the reach of her two hands. Triumphant she overcame her difficulties, first in her own mind, and then outwardly. As she tells the story in her own words, she reveals the personality which she has developed. Review critics feel that the book will outlast many other more fashionable novels and reports of military heroism. Mrs. Blewfield is an experienced reviewer and handles especially well, this type of book. As is customary the book review will be open to anyone who cares to go hear it.

A Thought for Today

The simple believeth every word, but the prudent man looketh well to his going.—Proverbs 14:15.

One has no protecting power save prudence.—Juvenal.

Without Representation

It is a strange and disturbing concession—or is it an assertion?—that Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor Board makes. This great agency, which has pretty much superseded normal peacetime labor controls, is utterly powerless to assist anybody who, by his own choice or through necessity, does not belong to a labor union.

There are, we are told, and can readily believe, 15,000,000 clerical, white collar, unorganized employees in the United States. There are 12,000,000 union members.

Government officials say that while the "Little Steel formula" can be applied to aid union workers, nothing can be done for the much greater army of the unorganized, except what employers care to do voluntarily.

Chairman Davis cannot help these 15,000,000 and their perhaps 45,000,000 dependents unless they join unions.

On the basis of actions, which speak louder than words, we can go further than Mr. Davis went. We can say that not only does the government decline to help non-union workers, but it actually hampers them. It forbids pay increases which employers are ready and anxious to make.

Thus the government's inadequacy, so far as the 15,000,000 who are not beneficiaries of the Little Steel formula is concerned, is not merely one of passive impotence; it is one of active obstructionism.

The obstructionism is not universal, but selective. It is not confined to the War Labor Board; it is probably worse with the Treasury. There, in some jurisdictions at least, it is frankly ideological.

Consider, for example, the administrator who, passing upon the case of a white collar worker whose income had been cut in half, expressed forthrightly his reason for forbidding a raise:

"No man who earns as much as $5,000 can be considered a victim of discrimination or maladjustment."

Yet for union members wage scales yielding as high as $7,200 for a concrete mixer have been approved, according to Senator Harry F. Byrd.

Human, in Part

News accounts from New Zealand bring word that the Japanese actually are human beings, mechanically, at least. Under humane treatment, we are told, captive Japs breaking down and giving useful military information.

So they aren't supermen. When hunger and exposure become too oppressive, their morale crumbles. Continuous bombing and bombardment shatter their morale. Increasing numbers prefer surrender to certain destruction.

They were whizbangs when they had overwhelming superiority in manpower and materiel. Now they turn out to be just so many little brown men—zealots, subhuman morally, and a long, long way from invincible.

Folks who neglect to order their coal in advance are liable to be left in a cold spot—no fueling!

Some built-in conveniences in a small apartment really are built-in inconveniences.

Global Jitters and the UNRRA

Any fears as to the motives of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration should be quieted by the admirable address which Herbert H. Lehman made when he assumed the directorship of that organization. The address, marked equally by compassion and common sense, might even silence some of the doleful warnings of a "world-wide WPA" and dire predictions of "a quart of milk for every Hottentot." At least it gives those warnings and predictions an increasingly hollow sound.

Mr. Lehman stated that he would act "as a representative of all the member governments, neither seeking nor accepting instructions from any individual government." He announced the UNRRA's "one cardinal principle" as that of "helping people to help themselves." He urged a policy of interfering as little as possible with the recognized authorities of liberated countries, and announced that "the purpose of UNRRA is not to substitute international controls for national controls."

He also re-emphasized certain conclusions and conditions that should be obvious to all of us, but apparently have not been: that no nation or any small group of nations has the resources to meet the problems confronting UNRRA; that the people who have suffered most directly from this war will want to work out their own salvation, rather than turn their country into a grand-scale relief project; that lasting peace cannot be achieved or even planned for while hunger and disease ravage the large part of two continents.

These are only some of the practical aspects of UNRRA policy, uttered by a man whose public life testifies to his truthfulness and sincerity. They promise a sensible fulfillment of a humane obligation which no one can question who professes any belief in Christian principles or the brotherhood of man.

The purposes stated by Mr. Lehman are of a sort which should be able to rally the support of a wide variety of political philosophies in this country. Even persons of an isolationist or nationalist viewpoint should agree that, in thinking of America first, they must think of America's future, and that in achieving pre-war comfort and prosperity by withholding all our resources from sick, hungry, strifetorn nations, we should be achieving a poor and precarious triumph.

New Economics

One trouble with increasing years is that they atrophy one's intellectual agility. After a time it becomes difficult for the elders to understand how his financial status can be improved by shifting small change from one pocket to a nother.

Obviously there is some better explanation of how subsidies are going to prevent inflation. There has to be, because so many able economists and commentators understand how it works. We can only hope that one of them will find words simple enough to make us understand.

It's not only the world that is so full of a number of things. Doctors found 14 needles in an Iowa man's stomach.

It would be nice if Santa Claus could bring us right now another month in which to do our Christmas shopping.

Hanging together during the war should lead the German leaders to hanging separately after it's over.

It is interesting to read that the annual fall horse show was held in Cleveland this year. Since meat rationing, we didn't know a horse had a show.

Nowadays women read the ration book and the bank book instead of the cook book to see what to have for dinner.

"How Do You Eat?" asks a health advertisement. It IS quite a problem!

Saturday night celebrators in a stupor usually are just hypnotized.

To allay hunger a jungle tribe chews on pieces of crude rubber. We call 'em steaks.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

Washington.—Bernard Baruch's denial that the peacetime business conversion policy, which he is devising, will provide for supervision by WPB, traces back to a private meeting he had here with representatives of the steel industry.

It was supposed to be a very secret meeting, but some of the steel people neglected to keep it that way, and their misinterpretation of Maruch's remarks reached certain business trade papers.

The wording of the Baruch denial made it appear that the story came from some of Donald Nelson's publicity men, but there is no indication that Nelson wants to take over the conversion job.

The task will be as difficult as the conversion of industrial plants to war. The problem of every individual plant will differ in some respect. Best picture of the situation has been presented by Chrysler's president, K. T. Keller.

He showed the George committee that Chrysler has converted 16,000 of its 20,000 tools to war work, and today has 19,227 tools owned by the government. These government tools will have to be cleared from the plant before Chrysler can start to make automobiles again. Then what to do about the tools?

They cannot all be converted to auto use, but he said Chrysler would buy some, and the government may wish to use others in arsenals. Obviously, the government is going to become involved in the greatest second-hand industrial junk business of all time.

Certainly, this situation calls for a clear, immediate declaration of policy and the beginning of tremendous detailed work of handling individual plant problems.

While WPB has experts with better knowledge of conditions than anyone else, much better than the Army and Navy, for instance, Baruch probably will recommend creation of an over-all body rather than designation of any specific government bureau.

This also seems to be the prevailing purpose in Senator George's committee where a statement of policy will be written in the form of a law and recommended for passage to congress.

Only extremely generalized rules can be laid down, however, in view of the variety of conflicting situations in plants. If the problem is messed up by bad management, it will dangerously accentuate unemployment difficulties, force continued rationing and delay our return to normal.

The Democratic congressional rebuke of the treasury and the administration in the new tax bill is not difficult to explain.

Cost of government, estimated in the budget for this fiscal year, was $106,000,000,000, but expenditures have been running so far only at a rate of $90,000,000,000. The treasury has revised its own estimate of tax receipts up to $45,000,000,000.

So the administration goal of raising half of the war costs through taxation already is being realized even without this additional $2,140,000,000 bill. Obviously, there is no need for the $10,500,000,000 tax increase which Morgenthau and his experts demanded of congress.

For this reason, the bill will go swimming through the senate as well as the house. The president no doubt will sign it, as a veto would be useless.

The house ban on the administration food subsidy plan probably will not necessarily kill the policy, paradoxical though this observation may seem.

The house majority was 14 votes higher than the two-thirds necessary to over-ride a presidential veto. But when the White House turns pressure on the Democrats to sustain the president in the end, they may be able to win over 14 or more. They usually can get the votes when the issue is that close.

The senate majority may not run as high as the house, and the prospects of a two-thirds majority there are even slimmer.

The odds therefore favor the president in the final analysis.

They'll Do It Every Time

Fair Enough by WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York.—Two contrasting events occurred Wednesday in New York.

At the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, 970 young American men received commissions as ensigns in the Navy, after ceremonies at which Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, who commanded the South Dakota when she shot down 32 Japanese planes in 30 minutes in the South Pacific, addressed them on duty, co-operation and patriotism. The graduates then dispersed to their various duties, most of them inexperienced in civil life and without prospects of jobs after the war, and without even thoughts of after-war careers.

About the same time, Henry J. Kaiser, who recently took over Brewster Aeronautical Corp. after a long record of miserable failure and willful sabotage of plane production for the Navy by an utterly dishonest and defiant CIO unioner with a long police record, was voicing complete confidence in this low and lying enemy of the graduates uptown and of all the American men who are doing the fighting. Known as Thomas De Lorenzo, and by a half dozen other names as he was forced to admit recently, the men who received Kaiser's compliments and those of R. J. Thomas, the international president of the United Automobile Workers of the CIO, declared only a few weeks ago that if it were necessary to prevent the production of a certain number of planes and to cause the death of a number of Navy men for lack of those planes, in order to maintain his union, he would do just that. He had lied in all his official documents, his draft registration and his tax returns among them, and had concealed his police record, including an indictment for rioting done for the very purpose of preventing the production of planes in the interests of the union. And the only honest statement he could make was that he was a liar by habit. Far from proceeding against him on any charge of moving him out of the position which he occupied as numerous officials of the company were perpetually canned on charges of inefficiency, the government permitted the impostor to return to his union stronger than ever, Kaiser appeared with him appeals to his superstitious better nature and the membership of the union, 18,000 American workers, gave him a resounding vote of confidence.

Under the existing labor laws and the new deal's labor policy this man cannot legally be thrown out of office. His union is a satellite of the new deal and he has the right to continue his sabotage of plane production, even at the cost of Navy men's lives, if he should so decide. On the other hand, the executives of the company, accused of inefficiency although Kaiser himself admits that the contract under which they worked with the union left them helpless, could be thrown out bodily and thus held to blame by the very government which forced that contract on them. Inefficiency is a negative offense. But the man known as De Lorenzo called strikes over trivial disputes, deliberately and knowing that the Navy flyers needed the ships.

It has often been said, and I am among those who said it, that American labor was all right but that the unionizers and the new deal were responsible for the incredibly brutal cynicism expressed in De Lorenzo's declaration that he would let fighters die to preserve his union's power. But the vote of confidence given by American men and women who knew all about this man and had participated in his sabotage, belies that sad hope. They are as bad as the men they support and as guilty of his guilt. And the fact must be faced, too, that Kaiser abandoned principle to get results by placating a ruthless power when, at least, he should have dealt with De Lorenzo as an evil condition forced upon him by the new deal. He was not required to pay him compliments, and they were especially inopportune and shocking on the same day that an admiral, speaking to the finest instincts of 970 fine young men going to war, heedless of all such nasty little prerogatives as De Lorenzo struck for and of all questions of a few cents more or less per hour for working in a factory safe at home.

"SEMPER FIDELIS"

By Edith Andrew Burchell

As I travel down life's pathway
I meet fair weather friends;
Oft times I find true friendships
Where never thought I found them.
But the dearest friend to welcome
In sunshine—rain or fog
Was Pal — that truly friend
O'mine.

A shepherd dog.
Were laurels ever given me,
In this world so all agog,
I would give Semper Fidelis
To Pal.

A shepherd dog.
Far away, maybe thousands miles away
In the air or on the road to Man delay

We sail the foaming sea,
From the Halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli Until we come back to you who we love the best.
We will Hup Two, Three, Four,
and will forget the rest,
But when the mail comes in and
I hear for you "Na Letter
Today,
I hang my head, sigh, turn and walk away.
We know you're working for our defense,
But still a stamp costs only three cents.

By Mabel Houck,
Woonung, Illinois.

TOMORROW

Thank God for tomorrow when today is done;
That one lingering hope at the setting of the sun.
If today has brought sorrow,
heart aches and tears,
Or if it brought sunshine, that
drown your fears,
Do your best today, if in joy or sorrow.
And when twilight comes, thank God for tomorrow!

"We are always touching others—
Character lives on and on.
In one person then another—
Long years after we are gone
Sows which now we each are sowing.
Through the lives of others grow
And through them the world is reaping.
What at first we chanced to sow!"

NOT THE PROPER WIFE

CHAPTER XXIV

THE board meeting took place at headquarters. Emily, waiting her turn to speak, looked at her audience in some trepidation. Emily Edgar smiled at her encouragingly. But Elsie was thinking, it's too bad of Frank . . . Emily was by no means the sort of daughter-in-law Elsie wanted. She liked to be the social service worker in the family. Nancy amused and rested her. A second Mrs. Edgar who would undoubtedly have her finger in all sorts of civic pies was not to Mrs. Edgar's liking.

Mollie, one of the industrial nurses, was speaking earnestly. Her enthusiasm carried her away and several members looked at one another with veiled amusement when Mollie spoke in blunt terms of the difficulty of proper care of workers under adverse conditions, and placed the blame of the typhoid outbreak at the proper doors—which led to the workers' houses.

Mrs. Edgar stirred and reddened painfully.

Emily's little speech was a sympathetic selection of case histories. The story of a sick child, saved in time. The story of a child, too often home during school hours, as the visiting nurse could easily see. Yet it was not a matter for a truant officer. There was no one at home to care for the patient and the younger children, except this child. Matters were better arranged through the father of the family, through the V. N. A. itself, and the doctor at the dispensary. She told them about the Elsters, and eventually about Mrs. Reman. The Reman case interested them, they leaned forward and she knew she had their whole attention. She spoke briefly but graphically of the house in which she had found Timmy. . . .

AFTER the meeting Mrs. Edgar beckoned her. She said, in her dominant, forthright way,

"You did very well, Emily. I agree with Miss Ansing that direct contact with actual nursing problems through the nurses themselves is invaluable to the board." She patted Emily's shoulder and smiled. "Why don't you come up and dine with us sometime, my dear? I hear of you through Frank but I don't see you often enough," she said.

'43 College Football Season to Grind to End This Afternoon

Army-Navy and Irish vs Bluejackets Top Today's Contests

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Three bowl bids, the eastern championship and Notre Dame's hopes for a perfect season are hanging in the balance today as the college football season grinds to a close.

Both sides of the New Orleans Sugar Bowl still are in the to-be-invited department as is Texas' foe in the Cotton Bowl. When today's action is over the wires will be hot.

Army and Navy always demand top billing from ocean to ocean when they have so-so clubs, but this year, in a wartime atmosphere that has shuttled the game to West Point and limited attendance to 16,000, the interest is world wide and the football strictly top drawer. The eastern title is an added prize for the winner.

Notre Dame will shoot for its first unbeaten, untied record since 1930 before an all-Navy throng at Great Lakes. Although their record is not as impressive, the Sailors are built along the same rugged lines as the Iowa Seahawks who gave the Irish the scare of the season last week. The Hawks meet Minnesota at the finale.

Two unbeaten teams will clash when Southwestern Louisiana invades Randolph Field in what is slated to be a throwing duel between Alvin Dark and the fliers' Glenn Dobbs. A post season bid is likely for the victor and possibly for both.

Georgia-Georgia Tech, meaning Johnny Cook vs. an injured Eddie Prokop, may hold the answer to another bowl riddle. Southern Cal has its final Rose Bowl prep against cross town rival U. C. L. A.

ARMY VS. NAVY

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Army and Navy football teams trot onto the field today virtual even-money betting favorites in their second meeting during the present world-wide conflict.

While it appeared that Navy's squad would be decimated by a plague of mid-week illnesses, all the Midshipmen were in good working order and Capt. J. E. Wheelchell announced his regular lineup would start.

It was the same with the Army forces. Lt. Col. Earl Blaik's athletes were every bit as fit. Only Doug Kenna, September choice as the team's best back, was in the questionable class. He hasn't scrimmaged since early November but may see action today as a passer.

Half of Cadet corps had seats on the Navy side and under the guidance of Midshipmen cheerleaders gave vocal support to the "enemy" from Annapolis.

While the game lost much of its lustre in the transfer from Philadelphia to the relatively secluded West Point stadium, it retained all its appeal for the graduates of the country's two major service schools.

Play-by-play descriptions went to all parts of the world for the entertainment of the fighting forces.

IRISH VS. SAILORS

Great Lakes, Ill., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame will attempt to wind up their first unbeaten and untied football season since 1930 today by defeating the Great Lakes Bluejackets who are powered by two former Notre Dame players, Emil Sitko and Steve Juzwik.

Sitko, Irish freshman star last year, is the Sailors' best ground gainer with an average of 6.7 yards for each of his 85 rushing attempts. Juzwik, a fine Notre Dame halfback for three seasons starting in 1939, is the team's leading scorer with 43 points.

Considerable interest also centers on the condition of Steve Lach, the injured Bluejacket running demon who gained an excellent reputation at Duke and also as a member of the Chicago Cardinals last year. Lach has averaged 6.3 rushing yards in 65 trips with the ball, although playing only 160 minutes of a possible 660 this season.

Notre Dame was expected to notch its 10th straight win without too much trouble, but Great Lakes will present a staunch defense which has held opponents to an average of -0.5 yards by rushing per game and an average of 69.5 yards through the air. Northwestern, breaking the Bluejacket line for 203 yards, is the only team to top the 200-yard mark this season.

FOR COTTON BOWL

Dallas, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Texas will make its second trip to the Cotton Bowl—without the usual week of fanfare, public workouts and parades.

This Jan. 1 game will be a one-day stand. The Texas squad will arrive the night before the game and leave immediately after it is over to conform with Navy conditions that trainees be kept from school a minimum time.

Formal acceptance by the Southwest conference champions was announced yesterday.

Cotton Bowl officials won't

Big Ten Statistics Uncover Champions of Football Season

Michigan and Purdue Tie for Conference Title; Other Figures

Chicago, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Meet the new champions—Michigan, Purdue, Indiana, Tony Butkovich, Eddie Bray, Bill Daley, Bob Hoernschemeyer. They're the statistical leaders in the Western Conference football season just concluded.

Each with six victories and no defeats, the Wolverines and Boilermakers finished at the top as conference co-champions. In addition, coach Fritz Crisler's Michigan club headed the list in both offense and defense. Indiana has the best aerial record.

Purdue's Butkovich, with a new conference record of 78 points, established in four games, won the scoring title; Bray of Illinois, and Daley of Michigan, topped the list in rushing yards with an average of 7.1 yards gained per try and Indiana's Hoernschemeyer was the leading conference passer.

Michigan's first-place offensive ranking was based on its high of 207 points scored, its leadership in net yards gained per game, 376, and in yards gained from scrimmage per game, 320.

Northwestern was runner-up in scoring with 170, and in yards gained per game, nosing out Purdue 298 to 297, although the Boilermakers finished second in rushing with 251 yards. The Wildcats, who wound up in third place in conference standings with five victories and one defeat, were behind both Minnesota (217) and Illinois (209) in rushing. Northwestern accumulated a 206 average.

Fairly Close Fight
Indiana and Northwestern had a fairly close fight for passing leadership, with the Hoosiers landing on top by virtue of a 98-yard average gain per game to the Wildcats' 82.

In establishing defensive supremacy the Wolverines allowed six opponents a total of 32 points and an average net gain of 131 yards per game, 105 by rushing and only 26 by passing. Purdue, while second in matter of points—42—was edged out by Indiana in opponents' yardage. The Hoosiers permitted an average of 170 yards, Northwestern 174 and Purdue 176.

Michigan topped all others in still another department—punting. Wolverine kickers compiled an average of 40 yards per kick and the next best was 37.5 yards by Northwestern.

The Wildcats' running and passing ace, Otto Graham, closed his brilliant three-year career by taking second-place scoring honors from Michigan's Elroy Hirsch who missed most of the Wolverines' last two games because of injuries.

Graham registered eight touchdowns and seven extra points in six games for a 55 total, while Hirsch followed with 44 points on seven touchdowns and two conversions.

Bray Active Player
Bray, 142-pound Illinois freshman, tied with Daley for ball totting proficiency, with an average gain per effort of 7.1 yards. Daley, who played only three conference contests, had a much more impressive average yardage gain per game, however. His was 167.3 yards and Bray's 95 yards. Also ahead of Bray on that basis was Butkovich with a 156.5 figure. The Purdue star, transferred by the Navy after playing in four conference tilts, topped the league in total net gain—626 yards—an average of 6.5 yards per effort.

Bray was among active players, though, with 570 yards, which also beat Daley's 502 yards.

Actually, the best rushing average was made by Northwestern's fullback, Nick Vodick, who gained 7.9 yards every trip, but he saw action in only four games and had an average gain per contest of only 57.7 yards.

Hoernschemeyer, the Hoosier passing sensation, was pushed for aerial leadership by Graham, but finished in the top spot with 44 completions for a net gain of 599 yards in six contests. Graham's completion average was somewhat better—50% to "Hunchy's" 45%—However, the Northwestern star tossed only 51 aerials compared with Hoernschemeyer's 97. Graham's 26 completed passes, netted 523 yards.

Carpenter said he would formally offer Herb Pennock, veteran American League pitcher, the post of general manager and indicated that an announcement might be forthcoming at the baseball meetings in New York next week. He had no comment on the possible division of authority between the team manager and the general manager.

and pillboxes and block houses made of concrete. (This explains why the 7th Army Air Force bomber pilots reported Betio appeared lightly manned but the Marines found the island heavily defended by 4,000 first line Jap marines.) Heavy Gun Fire Needed "It took heavy gun fire to open them up," said Carlson, who landed with Col. David W. Shroup of Indiana, commanding the First Combat Command, while the assault troops still were under fire. "It was difficult to see where our assault troops were," Carlson explained. "They actually mingled with the Japs at some places. They suffered heavy casualties and were rather disorganized in some places. They'd get a foothold and just hang on. They depended on guts and tenacity. Those boys were mostly buck privates. Because officers led the assault, casualties among officers was very high and the boys were on their own.

"It was terrifying sight and raise the admiration of those boys to a peak. They deployed in the water. They were under heavy mortar fire. Yet they moved right on. We couldn't have the supporting fire of our ships at this point because it was impossible to keep them informed where our boys were.

"At the end of the first day we had a small beachhead at three points of a depth of not more than 150 yards. At night it was a question of troops digging in, putting out security lines and shooting anything that moved outside the lines."

Carlson said that after the first night the Marines' foothold was sufficient and the capture of Betio became a question of time.

"The crisis was passed the second night but the going was still tough," he added. The capture of the island was effected after three days.

Pacific headquarters of Adm. William F. Halsey did report a new landing of troops and tanks from boats near the Piva river mouth on the upper end of the beachhead at Empress Augusta bay. Although shelling destroyers had paved the way for this operation, Jap 75 mm. guns on a nearby island managed to inflict some casualties and damaged some ships before the destroyers returned and silenced them.

Manager Seeley plans to move his family from Miles City, Mont., to Dixon in the very near future. This news brings great disappointment to many Dixonites, especially members of the Chamber of Commerce, who have on several occasions unsuccessfully tried to secure the buildings for factories which wanted to locate here. Had this been possible additional workers and their families would have doubtless been added to the city's population and resources.

Key Nazi Bastion Falls

Gomel, only important German-held town east of the Dnieper river, has been evacuated in face of Russian hammer-blows while in the upper Dnieper the enemy lines at Propoisk were broken, clearing the road to Minsk. German counter-attacks in the Korosten salient were repulsed.

Germany—and he went there recently. Careful observers were agreed, long before it was voiced, with the pronouncement of Lord Halifax that anything can happen now. They are agreed with Senator Downey's "many leaders of allied governments" that Germany's end could come by, or shortly after, Christmas.

But they are not betting much money that way. It is quite possible that one result of a Roosevelt Churchill-Stalin conference would be an announcement of what Germans can expect of the peace—just as a similar step regarding Austria was taken very recently at Moscow and the German people might respond—as individuals.

But there is no indication yet that the German people have anything to do with the course of Germany. Nor that the nazis are willing to get out, or could be thrown out. Instead, they are putting the clamps on tighter and tighter, in the knowledge that, once beaten, they will be going nowhere, with nothing to do when they get there.

The German boast of a secret reprisal weapon to be turned against England within a few days fits in very nicely with the theories of those who believe actual peace moves are under way.

So do the German counter-attacks in Russia, Italy and the Aegean. Proof of ability to conduct a steadfast defense would be Hitler's first necessity if he intended to negotiate.

But the men who are fighting Germany testify to her continued strength. They do not feel that November, 1943, is quite the same as November, 1918. Many have expected a climax this fall; many more are sure that it is not far away; but still there seems little valid reason to doubt such men as Roosevelt, Churchill and Bracken, who also might agree that anything can happen, but who profess to count only on more and bloodier battles for the immediate future.

Reds Over Berezina;

against the strategic stronghold, pushed west from the Sozh in outflanking maneuvers to the north and south. Wednesday's breakthroughs at Propoisk, 60 miles north of Gomel, completed the isolation of the beleaguered German garrison and decided the outcome of the battle.

Today Rokossovsky's troops were pouring through the Gomel gap, and extending their control on the east bank of the upper Dnieper. Red army advance guards already were reported far west of the river south of Gomel. The Russian communicate early today said other soviet spearheads had reached the railway town of Kostyukovka, eight miles to the northwest on the line where the Germans were fleeing toward Zlobin, Brobuski and the White Russian town of Minsk through an escape corridor narrowed to 50 miles.

Two other Red armies were reported moving in for the kill. One, thrusting toward Zlobin from the southwest, had reached Davidovka, the war bulletin said, and another was surging down from the north from the Propoisk area to complete a pincer which threatened to cut the escape railway at Zlobin junction. Other soviet forces were cleaning up in the Rechitsa area, west of Gomel.

(Moscow dispatches to London said that 20 German divisions—possibly 300,000 men—faced entrapment).

Third Great Attack

Fortresses on Sept. 16 and by the RAF on Oct. 7 in a joint attack with Friedrichshaven. Last night was Stuttgart's 16th raid of the war.

The "very great force" which raided Berlin and Stuttgart last night went out in three contingents which thundered over the coast for 45 minutes. Some of the bombers started before dark.

Soon afterward, the Germans in their second successive night raid on England, succeeded in getting two planes through to the London area. A few bombs fell and several persons were killed.

The record American operation yesterday probably involved 700 or more Fortresses and Liberators. In their previous peak on Nov. 3 these heavy bombers, which pack around three tons apiece, dropped something under 2,000 tons of bombs.

Their loss of 29 was the heaviest since the record 60 which fell by the wayside in the smash against Schweinfurt on Oct. 14 and was nearly double the 15 which were lost on a Bremen raid on Nov. 13.

Three Companies of Illinois WACs Now at Daytona Beach

Three Illinois companies of WAC recruits are now in training at the Daytona Beach, Florida, WAC Training Center, according to Sen. Arnold P. Benson, chairman of the committee on public information, Illinois War Council.

"No doubt the war rallies in 20 cities of the state have awakened new interest in the need of WAC recruits to replace men soldiers for combat duties," said Sen. Benson, "but there seems to be an additional impetus to recruiting since it has been broadcast that all Illinois recruits for the WACs will be sent to Daytona Beach for winter training.

"We have found that this has a very strong appeal to young women who contemplate 'joining up', for it means six weeks basic training in the sunny Florida climate and several weeks longer if they are given specialist training. So, between the stimulation of recruiting through the parades and war rallies led by Gov. Dwight H. Green and the appeal of the training in one of Florida's finest resort centers, enlistments are very much on the up grade.

"The war rallies will be resumed in the southern end of the state beginning this week end. The first meeting is scheduled for Lawrenceville on Friday. Other rallies will be held at Cairo, Carbondale, Marion, Herrin, West Frankfort, Vandalia, Centralia and East St. Louis after which the final meeting of the drive will be staged in Chicago on Dec. 6.

"All told the effort that has been put in on WAC recruiting is showing signs of excellent results as the full needs for additional members of the Woman's Army Corps are brought home to those girls who are eligible throughout the state", concluded Benson.

Minute Examination

spending in Latin America amounted to slightly more than $2,000,000,000 and half of that went for the purchase of critical war materials.

"Doesn't the senator know that the Germans and Japanese had interests down there?" McKellar demanded. "Doesn't he know that if there had been any trouble there it would have cost us infinitely more than these amounts?" Rockefeller in a speech at an American Legion dinner last night reiterated that the "estimate was a misrepresentation of the facts".

The coordinator, grandson of the late John D. Rockefeller, contended that all outlays totalled less than $600,000,000 in Latin America. The figure, "as in the case of that $6,000,000,000 figure" does not include "the sums spent for goods, services and raw materials", he said.

SO I UNDERSTAND

(The following poem was forwarded to the editor of the Service Men's page by a Dixon soldier now serving on foreign soil, and is credited to a service men's publication in which it appeared very recently.)

Dear Family:
It was pleasant to hear from you after such a long time, but it is unpleasant to hear of your changed conditions of living which I can more readily understand from the change in my own conditions.

It is too bad that you are limited to the use of your automobile—I know just how it is to walk through miles and miles of dust and mud. So I understand.

It's too bad your choice of food is limited. I have experienced this too—except there is no choice here—so I understand.

It's too bad Willie has to work so many hours at the defense plant. I have to work night and day at our defense plant, so I understand.

It's too bad you don't have very much entertainment or amusement. We are deprived of amusement too, so I understand.

It's too bad that you have to wait in the rain for transportation. I have to stand in rain on my post, ride in it in an open truck with my destination uncertain too, so I understand.

It really is too bad you are being so underpaid and have to work so hard. I only get a fraction of your pay, and my hours are—well, most of the 24, so I understand.

Winning this war is certainly hard on all of us that understand. But, during those long hours I do get shot at, do you understand?

This air base, only until recently the site of flourishing cotton fields, is alive today with the roar of Uncle Sam's planes flying overhead.

The BT-13 which a cadet learns to handle here is a faster and heavier plane than the one which he flew at Primary School and, therefore, requires a wider knowledge of all aerial sciences. His varied course of training includes instrument flying, night soloing, and a thorough study and application of aerial navigation.

Twentieth Century Club

The members of the Twentieth Century club met at the home of Mrs. I. H. Breese last Friday afternoon for their regular meeting. Mrs. Ferris Avery and Mrs. Maude Pogue had charge of the program and it had Thanksgiving as its theme. The group was asked to submit menus for the holiday dinner using as few points as possible. Mrs. Harold Torman won this prize as her menu was lowest in the number of points. A jig-saw puzzle of turkeys was then to be assembled and Mrs. Frank Wheeler assembled her's first, so she copped the prize. Mrs. Breese, Mrs. Truman Breese and Miss Beulah Breese were the hostesses, and they served a delicious luncheon to round out the social time. Mrs. S. A. Wright was presented with a lovely gift for her new home from the club and Mrs. Wright very graciously responded—she has been a good friend and loyal supporter of all activities of the group and leaves soon for her new home in Rockford. Mrs. J. R. Reynolds was the guest of honor and everyone reported a delightful afternoon.

Sunshine Circle

Mrs. Lillie Weaver entertained the members of the Sunshine Circle at her home Thursday afternoon for their November meeting. A delicious 1:00 o'clock Thanksgiving dinner was served with a large group in attendance. Mrs. R. A. Politich, the class president, opened the meeting and during roll call the ladies responded with appropriate quotations from magazines and various other articles. The program was centered on Thanksgiving and Mrs. Louise Valentine gave a reading followed by several other readings by other members. Mrs. E. N. Gibbs gave an interesting talk on the origin of "Silent Night", to close the afternoon's program. The next meeting will be held sometime in January at the home of Mrs. Bert Tyreman. Everyone reported a pleasant afternoon and this was one of the most enjoyable Thanksgivings that the group ever spent.

Family Dinner

Irwin "Skeets" Gallagher, was the guest of honor at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mae Gallagher, Sunday afternoon. He enjoyed a 10-day furlough with his wife, baby daughter and mother, and he left Thursday to return to military duties. He is now stationed in Washington, D. C., and is a proud member of the Coast Guard. The afternoon was spent with the group visiting and everyone extended their best wishes to Irwin wherever he may be stationed.

Those present for the family dinner were, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Gallagher and daughter Sharon, of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. James Gallagher and daughter Teresa and son Sammy, of Genoa, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Hammond and daughter Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Gallagher and daughter Maureen, Mrs. Walter Gibson, Mrs. Mae Gallagher and daughter Madelon and Bill Buchanan, all of Paw Paw.

Missionary Society

Mrs. H. R. Rosenstone entertained the members of the Presbyterian Missionary Society at her home Wednesday afternoon for their regular meeting. The usual business meeting was held with Mrs. Ferguson giving the lesson for the day. She told about "Thailand" telling of historical facts and the present day living status there. Mrs. Blanche Roberts had charge of the devotions after which a social time was enjoyed. The hostess then served a dainty lunch very ably assisted by some friends. A pleasant afternoon was spent by all and urged to attend their next meeting.

Junior Woman's Club

The members of the Junior Woman's club gathered at the home of Mrs. Donald Ambler Wednesday evening for their November meeting. The club has been doing Red Cross work at these meetings, but owing to the lack of vital material at the work rooms, this meeting was given over to a social party. So the group spent the evening planning various games and contests. Following the merriment the hostess served delicious refreshments to complete a pleasant evening for everyone.

'Watch Your Check' Advice Given from U. S. Secret Service

WATCH YOUR CHECK
Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber joins Thomas J. Callaghan, supervising agent of the United States Secret Service, Chicago, in warning people receiving allowance or allotment checks, or any checks by mail, that they should take every possible precaution to prevent their loss or theft, as many checks are going astray and are being cashed on forged endorsements, and that the mail box thieves and check forgers are more active in the holiday season. The warning is also given to business men, or anyone cashing checks for others, that they should be extra cautious in cashing checks, and should be certain the person presenting the check for payment is the person rightfully entitled to the money, because if the check is cashed for someone not entitled to the money, the person paying out money for the check is the loser.

Chief Van Bibber and the Secret Service urge that the following precautions be observed:
IF YOU RECEIVE CHECKS:

1. Have some member of the family at home when check is due to be delivered. Whenever possible, arrange with your mail carrier to deliver all checks to a person, rather than to a box.

2. Have a good deep mail box, and be sure your name is clearly printed on it. KEEP IT LOCKED.

3. Cash your checks in the same place each month. This will make identification easier. CASH IT YOURSELF—DON'T SEND CHILDREN TO CASH CHECKS.

4. If you change your address, notify the post office immediately.

5. Do not endorse your check until you are in the presence of the person you will ask to cash it. IF YOU CASH CHECKS FOR

1. Before you cash a check, ask yourself this question: "If this check is returned because of a forged endorsement, can I locate the person that gave it to me and recover my loss?"

2. Demand proper identification. The better means of identification is to have a man show his draft card, and a woman her ration book.

3. Insist that all checks be endorsed in your presence. Compare the written signature with that on whatever means of identification is presented.

4. Have each check initialed by the employee who pays out money for it.

T.N.—J.G.

In 1938, the Secret Service began a campaign of "KNOW YOUR MONEY", and since then counterfeiting has dropped 97 percent; and it is because of this success that they have initiated the KNOW YOUR ENDORSER campaign. Since many offenders in check cases are juveniles, it is hoped the campaign will keep some of them out of trouble.

—Brides-to-be should supply themselves with monogram stationery, note heads, formals and thank-you cards. See our beautiful samples.—B. F. Shaw Printing Company.

Charges Conspiracy
in Liquor Shortage
Chicago, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A federal grand jury will start an investigation Tuesday into alleged illegal trade practices which have resulted in an "unnecessary liquor shortage," J. Albert Woll, U. S. district attorney, said yesterday.
Evidence to be presented to the jury has been gathered by the alcohol tax unit, Woll said. He added "there is a conspiracy of the part of certain firms and individuals in this area to create an artificial and unnecessary shortage."

TODAY on the HOME FRONT

by JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, Nov. 27—(AP)—The faltering way in which the story of Major General George S. Patton's head-slapping episode became public has brought into focus two sharp questions on the war department's policy of giving news to the American public:

1. To what extent—and for how long—is the department justified in hushing up an unpleasant episode on grounds that publication might give aid and comfort to the enemy?

2. Are there other instances—will there be—of the same kind of news strangulation involved in the Patton story?

A central point at issue is what is "security" and what isn't. Nobody has contended that the Army or Navy should make public any information when its publication would threaten the security of the nation or the lives of its fighters. But newsman, anxious to protect the interests of the country, feel obligated to make known as much information as it's possible to tell.

Here is the background of the Patton incident:

On Aug. 10, during the Sicilian campaign in which he commanded the hard-hitting Seventh Army, Patton strode into a military hospital, consoled wounded troops, and saw a shell-shocked soldier sobbing on the side of a bed.

When the soldier told Patton the front-line shelling had cracked his nerves, Patton slapped the man on the back of the head, called him "yellow," and ordered him back to the front. Hospital attaches intervened.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower heard of the occurrence, rebuked Patton. The latter apologized to the soldier, the hospital staff and his troops in the field.

Newspaper correspondents covering the Sicilian invasion got the story. They were told by Eisenhower that Army censorship would not stop their sending it back to the United States but that he believed its publication would be of value to the enemy. The correspondents, taking Eisenhower's word as to the effect publication would have, agreed not to send the story.

Months passed. Some newsmen, returning to this country on leave, discussed the incident among friends, but the story still was not printed since Eisenhower never had rescinded his original caution on its publication.

By word of mouth the story got around in this country.

Drew Pearson, newspaper columnist and radio commentator heard of it.

He says he wrote the story, cleared it through the Office of Censorship here and consulted "high war department officials" who told him to use his own judgment as to releasing it.

He broadcast it Sunday night.

Thus the field correspondents, who had obtained the story last summer but still held it out of respect for Eisenhower's opinion that the enemy would benefit by its release, were left in the lurch.

The Office of Censorship said it had made "no objection" to Pearson's story when submitted for clearance. That is the customary censorship expression used when it passes a story.

Although high war department officials, according to Pearson's statement, knew he contemplated using the story, the field correspondents not only were not aided in finally clearing it after the Pearson broadcast, but for a while were definitely hindered.

After the broadcast, American news services checked back to allied headquarters in Algiers and received an official announcement which was in effect a denial. In addition, Army censorship in Algiers suddenly clamped down, despite what Eisenhower said months ago, and refused to let the Patton story out.

The next day headquarters did an about face and let the story out. 36 hours after Pearson's broadcast.

Oglesby May Run for Congress-at-Large

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 27—(AP)—Richard J. Oglesby, grandson of Illinois' famed governor, is considering running for congressman-at-large in the Republican primary next April. He said yesterday he had been urged to become a candidate by friends and that "I am giving serious thought to it."

—If you are a Lee county land owner you should have one of our Lee county plat books. Price 50 cents.—B. F. Shaw Printing Company

FROM the alphabeteers of Washington clear to the most anti-New Dealers on the Midwestern farms there is one note of agreement and that is concern over the man-power shortage. Many a scheme has been proposed but nothing has touched the heart of the confirmed "shovel-leaner" of WPA days. Even the best "leaner" of the bunch will admit this is true and that he was spoiled. Now he just doesn't seem to be able to stir himself up mentally enough to "take it."

LISTEN to this experience a Lee county farmer had this fall as he looked for an extra man for a day or two. One of the employment agencies where he inquired had the name of a would-be worker. The address given was a tavern. When the farmer went to this place to find the fellow, he found not only the prospect enjoying a bit of mid-morning relaxation but he found also about fifty able bodied men loafing blissfully in this Lee(?) hangout.

THE irony of the whole thing was that no one, not even the man who had put his name in with the employment agency, was willing to go out and do the work which the farmer had to do. The language that the farmer used as he told about the incident afterwards didn't indicate that he cared very much if these fellows did have to draw in their belts a little tighter because of lack of production on the food front!

ONE of the patriotic and enthusiastic merchants in Dixon said the other day that he believed if the situation really became critical at any time next summer that it would be advisable for the stores to close a day now and then and send employees out to help farmers, especially if weather should cause a sudden big need for help. Such a plan has been tried in some communities and has helped tremendously.

AFTER hearing both these incidents it has occurred to the Listenin' Post that possibly if just the taverns and loafing places were closed for certain hours during the day at critical times maybe the man-power shortage would have been more sensible if applied to such hangouts than to have it used on the essential transportation industry as it was during the gas station "shut-down."

THERE'S an interesting little item coming from the southern food front concerning watermelons and peanuts . . . remember how it was stated that there would be no transportation facilities for watermelons this summer and then remember the extremely high prices they brought. Now the story is this—the government suggested that farmers change from watermelons to peanuts and some complied while others stuck to their old crop. Time came for the harvest, transportation was available and some who had gone against government suggestion made as much as $3,000 an acre! Peanuts were a good price but nothing like that. Needless to say there are some pretty skeptical farmers when they hear anything about government "suggestions" now!

SINCE "Butch" Davis was in Dixon the other night, the question has been asked, "What became of Jim Poole whose place Mr. Davis took on the radio?" According to reports Mr. Poole is recovering from a long illness.

About two years ago the doctors discovered that he had a diabetic condition and he was put on a strict diet which even cut out his smoking. After about a year he was enough better that he was allowed to smoke again but he still had to be extremely careful of his diet.

ASIDE from this trouble he has a cataract which is impairing the sight of one eye. In spite of all this and his 80 years of age he still bemoans the fact that he can't work just as hard as ever. He has deep depressive spells because he just isn't physically able to do the job. The company for which he broadcast offered to let him be on the air once or twice a month if he wanted to but characteristic of his past thoroughness he said "No, a man has to be in the thick of this game all the time in order to keep on top and I just can't do it anymore."

YOU will be glad to know though that for the last month or so "Jim" has been up and about again and has been able to leave the house now and then. Maybe his voice, which is getting stronger, will come over the air again some of these days.

WASTED FATS

Before World War II and the campaign to salvage fats, housewives were throwing away 2,000,000,000 pounds of used kitchen fats a year. This figure equaled the amount imported.

Sale of Christmas Seals Encouraging to TB Association

Early returns indicate that the citizens of Lee county are giving their customary enthusiastic support to the Christmas Seal sale of the Lee County Tuberculosis Association. Contributions for the first week will average $200 per day. The association is grateful for the many expressions of good will which have accompanied both large and smaller donations. Harry M. Ostrander of Harmon, whose promptness made him the first contributor, wrote as follows: "In spite of the many drives to which we are all being asked to contribute these days, I am always glad to buy Christmas Seals. I wish you every success". John A. Torrens, who delivered his check in person, was a close second.

It is a fitting coincidence that the first two contributors to a program dedicated to education should both be school officials to whom the welfare of young people is a first consideration. In discussing the county-wide school program which is being made possible by the Christmas Seal fund, Mr. Torrens expressed his personal thanks as follows: "As County Superintendent of Schools, I greatly appreciate the splendid

MANY PEOPLE THINK OF GLASSES IN TERMS OF A PIECE OF MERCHANDISE RATHER THAN IN TERMS OF EYE COMFORT AND VISUAL EFFICIENCY!

Can you imagine a doctor basing his fees on bandages, splints or medicine that he uses? Of course not. You go to him for professional advice and care. The materials he uses are but incidentals. Important? Yes... but of no value to you without professional knowledge and skill and service to determine and guide their use. If you break an arm or leg you don't say, "Guess I'll have to buy a splint." You shout, "Get the doctor."

But what about your eyesight? Ever catch yourself saying, "Guess I'll have to buy some glasses?" That's about as logical as talking of buying splints. Glasses alone won't correct faulty vision.

Many people do have the wrong conception of the relation of glasses to eyecare and service. Here, just as in the case of splints, glasses are but incidental materials. They're important, of course, but of no value to you without the professional knowledge of a trained eye man to guide their use.

Your priceless sight deserves the skill and professional services of a trained optician to assure you of receiving the utmost in eye comfort and visual efficiency. More important, these professional services are worth infinitely more than the cost of the material in the glasses themselves.
